SQUEERS DOES IT AGAIN

A DISHELPER Day by Day (Contd.)

COULD YOU imagine a day when the children of the world would be so happy, so contented, so satisfied with their lot as the children of this world are today? They are so happy, so contented, so satisfied with their lot that they are willing to do anything for them.

It is a day when the children of the world are so happy, so contented, so satisfied with their lot that they are willing to do anything for them. It is a day when the children of the world are so happy, so contented, so satisfied with their lot that they are willing to do anything for them.
